To Other Music Presenters:

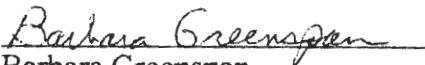

We had such an overwhelming reservation response to our notice that The Folk Collection would be playing our Noble House Concert, that we scheduled an earlier second show -- something I have never done before.

The Folk Collection was one of the most entertaining and crowd pleasing acts we have presented. The trio connected immediately with the audience, which included young children, and brought them all "into" their performance. Their humor, harmony and showmanship was warmly received by adults and children. We are having them back next year.

Because of their connection to all age groups in the audience, and my view that they would be able to attract audience, I introduced The Folk Collection to a non-profit organization devoted to children, with which I am affiliated. A benefit concert was arranged, at which the organization raised substantial funds from ticket sales.

I highly recommend The Folk Collection to other presenters and also to non-profit organizations thinking of events at which money can be raised.

Sincerely,

Barbara Greenspan
